IN SEVEN BATTLES DURING THE WAR.

Travelled Among the Savage Indian Tribes Out West in the 50's, but Was Never Harmed—His Good Police Record.

Yesterday Harry Hill, one of the best known members of the Brooklyn police force, retired from active duty, after a faithful service of nearly thirty-two years. He was forced out to give place to a younger man. Previous to his career as a police officer his life was full of change and action.

The modest little frame dwelling on Degraw street, which Hill bought and has nearly paid for, stands back from the street some thirty or forty feet, at the end of a level stretch of lawn. The neighborhood is sparsely settled, and only a few modern houses and the old homesteads of the Parks and Kidders lie between the little home and the pentagon.

Hill was found reclining on a couch, a victim of rheumatism.

"So you've come to see about me resigning?" he said. "Well, for the last seven years I've been detailed for special duty in the City Treasury Department, and I've carried over $50,000.00 for them and never lost a cent. Two months ago they moved the treasury from the municipal building to the Court House. There was a man already there, and I knew they were not allowed but one, so I began to feel a little shaky and went to the Commissioner, but he says, "You just go back to your work." Harry, it will be all right. I did so, but I kept getting hints which led me to know which way the wind was blowing. Then I made up my mind to resign and retire on half pay. Still, I wanted to stay until the 1st of February, as I owe $50 more on my house, and that one month more of full pay would have put me out of debt; but last Wednesday I was called up by Mr.

Crosby, the deputy, and he says, "Harry, you'll have to go on post January 1; I'm sorry, but we can't have two men here." That meant day and night street duty, and I couldn't do that. Then I asked him to let me stay one month longer, but he wouldn't answer me, so there was nothing to do but resign.

Hill served three years in the army during the war and was in seven battles, but was wounded only slightly. Sleeping on the damp ground gave him rheumatism.
Before the war a love of travel led Hill to go West. He went among the Sioux, Chippewas, Comanches and other savage tribes, but was never harmed. At that time there was but one house on the site of what is now the city of St. Paul.

Hill has two married sons, a daughter about twelve years of age and a third son, Harry, Jr. For twenty years he was a patrolman, and during that time had several exciting experiences with thieves, one of his most famous achievements being the capture of West Allen, the noted sneak thief, whom he caught escaping from a store on Fulton street with $700 worth of furs.

Pianist Rosenthal Has a Relapse.
Chicago, Jan. 2.—Rosenthal, the pianist, is again suffering a relapse. The facts of the case have been withheld from the public for the alleged reason that facts published are telegraphed abroad and cause alarm to Rosenthal's relatives, who have been all along depressed by premonitions.
Rosenthal suffered a relapse on Sunday last. Two nights ago, it was reported, his case was considered critical, but last night he was somewhat better.

Kate Field's Ashes Reach Chicago.
Chicago, Jan. 2.—The ashes of Kate Field, the Washington journalist, were brought to this city yesterday from San Francisco by Colonel Charles M. Taylor, of the Boston Globe, and were delivered to Miss Lillian Whiting, a lifelong friend of Miss Field, who will go with them to Boston to-morrow.
There they will be interred in Mount Auburn Cemetery. The ashes occupy an arranged twelve inches in height, which was brought across the continent in a small satchel.

ANNUAL JANUARY REDUCTION SALE

Every year we strive to make the present January sale surpass the previous one, and do it by offering additional value, greater attractions and more interesting offerings.
This week's sale is begun with the two best selling styles of shoes we have in stock. They have been $3.50 all season, but for a starter and a magnet are now being sold at a reduction of $1.00 a pair.

Ladies' Extra

Former Price,
$3.50.

No shoe, when once given a trial, will meet with more appreciation or merit approval as readily as this style of shoe. Not only are they faunt and dressy, but are so constructed that they are in proper form when used for walking or for skating.

Special cut prices prevail during this month in Men's, Women's and Children's Shoes.
